V. SUMMARY OF CLAIMED SUBJECT MATTER

The invention is directed to an internet web site, and method of doing business on a web site. Independent claim 1 and dependent claims 2 – 10 are directed to a method of doing business on a web site constructed to enable a user to learn how to repair a wide variety of items, from small to large household appliances, to business machines such as typewriters, computers, printers and the like, to bicycle and automobiles, among a wide and diverse variety of devices and which facilitates the purchase of replacement parts for the repair [specification, page 1, line 22 to page 2, line 2]. In particular, the invention provides graphics in the form of a photograph or other illustration [original claims 2 and 8] depicting the device, depicting a plurality of replaceable parts [page 2, line 2] for the device, and depicting the relationship of the parts to the device [Figure 1]. A user can then mouse click on graphics representing a replaceable part of the device [see page 2, line 5] which results in a list of one or more manufacturers or vendors of the part selected by the user [see page 2, line 6]. The user can then mouse click on one of the manufacturers or vendors in the list to obtain information about the part needing replacement, or to purchase the part needing replacement [page 3, line 26 to 29; Figure 1 at 14].

Independent claim 11 and dependent claims 12 – 21 are directed to an internet web site providing and displaying information about the repair of various devices [page 2, lines 3 to 4], in the form of a photograph or other illustration [original claims 2 and 8] depicting the device, depicting a plurality of replaceable parts [page 2, line 2] for the device, and depicting the relationship of the parts to the device [Figure 1]. The claim refers to means whereby, when a user uses a mouse to click on graphics representing a replaceable part of the device [see page 2, line 5] which results in a list of one or more manufacturers or vendors of the part selected by the user [see page 2, line 6]. The claim also refers to means whereby when a user uses a mouse click on one of the manufacturers or vendors in the list, the user can obtain information about the part needing replacement, or to purchase the part needing replacement [page 3, line 26 to 29; Figure 1 at 14].

VI. GROUNDS OF REJECTION TO BE REVIEWED ON APPEAL

(1) Claims 1, 5 - 11, 14 – 16, 19, and 20 [sic – there is no claim 9] are rejected as unpatentable under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Moore (U.S. Patent No. 5,877,961 – hereinafter “Moore”) in view of Allsop (U.S. Patent No. 5,970,472 - hereinafter “Allsop”); and

(2) Claims 8, 17, and 21 are rejected as unpatentable under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Moore Koprowski in view of Allsop, and further in view of Messer (U.S. Patent No. 5,991,740 - hereinafter "Messer")

VII. GROUPING OF CLAIMS

The claims are in one group that stand or fall together.

VIII. ARGUMENT

Issue (1): Whether claims 1, 5 - 8, 10, 11, 14 - 16, 19, and 20 are patentable under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Moore in view of Allsop

The rejections over Moore and Allsop are fundamentally flawed. First, the Examiner has mischaracterized Moore. Notwithstanding the Examiner's attempt to describe Moore as providing a method of doing business on the world wide web (paragraph 3, line 3 of the Office Action) or as disclosing an internet web site and a program operating the website with web site pages) (page 4, lines 13 - 14), in fact nowhere in Moore is there any mention or description of the world wide web, of the internet, or of web site pages. All Moore describes is a server and a local area network.

Second, the Examiner has mischaracterized Allsop, which is cited because the Examiner admits that Moore does not disclose a list of manufacturers or vendors of the item selected. Allsop is therefore cited to provide that function, but in fact there is nothing of the sort in Allsop. In Allsop, a consumer accesses an order processing unit by activating a hypertext link provided by the manufacturer's web site (col. 7, lines 24 - 26). Therefore, information is provided from only that pre-selected manufacture. Allsop's only purpose is to "provide[s] a customized user interface for ordering products only from the one specific manufacturer and dealer" (emphasis added, lines 18 - 22 of the Abstract, col. 2, lines 54 - 57), which is the antithesis of what is provided by Applicant's claims.

Since claim 1 is not suggested by Moore and/ or Allsop, the remaining claims, which contain all the limitations of claim 1 are necessarily not suggested.

Issue (2): Whether claims 8, 17, and 21 are patentable under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Moore in view of Allsop, and further in view of Messer US Patent No. 5,991,740

Claims 8, 17 and 21 call for the web site of the manufacturer or vendor to be specifically set up to receive referrals from another web site and to compensate the owner of the referring web site. These claims are improperly rejected over Moore and Allsop in view of Messer. The weaknesses of Moore and Allsop are not cured by Messer, or even addressed by Messer. The combination therefore does nothing to suggest the claimed invention, in which a list of one or more manufacturers is provided only after the user uses a mouse to click on displayed graphics representing a replaceable part of a device.

Application Serial No. 09/764,530

Conclusion

Fundamentally, none of the references addresses the central elements of the claims. Applicant respectfully submits that the invention is not obvious over Moore, Allsop, or Messer or any combination of them. Affirmation of this position is courteously solicited.
